

BEARView Conference: Seminar on Cuzco: A World Heritage Historic Urban Centre

On 20th January 2016, the video conference room in the European Research Institute hosted a seminar on “Cuzco: A World Heritage Historic Urban Centre” for the MA programme in World Heritage Studies. The event was organised by Helle Jorgensen, lecturer at the Ironbridge International Institute for Cultural Heritage, University of Birmingham. The seminar took place as part of the “World Heritage Case Study” course attended by the World Heritage students at the institute, and made it possible for the students to engage in live discussion with Professor Helaine Silverman from the Collaborative for Cultural Heritage Management and Policy at the University of Illinois, thus enhancing the partnership and dialogue between the two institutions. Earl provided friendly and competent assistance during the session and we were very well satisfied with the ease of interaction which the facilities provided. This is definitely a facility which we will be using again to create dialogue in teaching and bridge the distance with partner institutions.
