¹ All apprentices must also be employed, full time, by the start of the academic programme in order to be eligible to begin the apprenticeship programme.

5.1.2 Accreditation of Prior Learning (APL)²

- 5.1.2 (a) Accreditation of Prior Learning (APL) is the process by which the University awards credit against learning achieved by an individual before entry to a programme of study. There are two types of APL: Accreditation of Prior Certificated Learning (APCL); and Accreditation of Prior Experiential Learning (APEL). Applications for APL must be made before entry to a programme of study.
- 5.1.2 (b) Applicants may be admitted onto taught programmes of study and research degree programmes with taught elements on the basis of credit achieved on another University of Birmingham programme, or at another institution, or through work experience which has been accredited. Credit achieved in this way may, where relevant, contribute towards the achievement of the credit requirements of the University of Birmingham programme concerned in accordance with procedures approved by the Senate or under delegated authority. Submission of an APL application does not guarantee that exemption credit will be granted.
- 5.1.2 (c) (i) In the case of taught programmes of study, the use of pre-awarded credit awarded by an institution other than University of Birmingham towards a University Award is subject to a maximum of two-thirds of the total credits required for the Award. Successful completion of the Award depends on achievement of the remaining credits at the same level as, or at a more advanced academic level than, the pre-awarded credits. These credits must include any compulsory dissertation or thesis element stated in the programme requirements (see also subsection 6.1.2).
- (ii) In the case of research degree programmes with taught elements, the use of pre-awarded credit towards a University Award is subject to a maximum of one-third of the total credits required for the Award and amounting to no more than 50% of the taught credits of the programme. Successful completion of the Award depends on achievement of the remaining credits (which must include any compulsory dissertation or thesis element stated in the programme requirements) at the same level as or at a more advanced academic level than the pre-awarded credits (see subsection 6.1.4).
- 5.1.2 (d) The marks awarded in assessment of pre-awarded credit obtained at an institution other than University of Birmingham do not count towards the final degree classification, weighted mean mark and grade point average, which is determined entirely upon modules taken within the University of Birmingham.

² Applicants for apprenticeship programmes do not need to claim for APL as this is covered in the additional information that they will be asked to provide as part of their application. As such, the maximum limit of pre-awarded credit detailed in 5.1.2 (c) does not apply to apprenticeship programmes.

- 5.1.2 (e) In the case of credit previously awarded by the University of Birmingham, the 'stacking' of credit towards an award, including the marks awarded, is possible³. An application for Accreditation of Prior (Certificated) Learning will need to be submitted before entry to the award bearing programme and will be considered as specified in 5.1.2 (b).
- 5.1.2 (f) Where a qualification was previously awarded by the University of Birmingham and an application and associated claim for Accreditation of Prior (Certificated) Learning is accepted for a higher award of the same course, should the student subsequently fulfil the requirements for that higher award to be conferred, the student should normally surrender the certificate / certification for the original lower award to the University prior to the new certificate / certification (for the higher award) being made available to them.
- 5.1.2 (g) Exemption from part of a module is not permissible.
- 5.1.2 (h) It is not possible to request exemption from University of Birmingham modules that the applicant has already begun to study.
- 5.1.2 (i) Requests for a review of an APL decision may only be made on the basis of additional evidence that was unavailable at the time of the application.
