

In all cases, if you need to resit in the summer this will be possible. It will take the form of one or more pieces of inclusive online assessment.

You are a final year Undergraduate student.

The University's emergency adaptations to the regulations mean that instead of needing 120 successfully completed credits from the final year, you will need 80 credits instead. This will include your 40 or 20 credit project/dissertation.

You have already successfully completed most of this year's assignments or are on track to do so. (This is 80 credits, including a 40 or 20 credit project/dissertation).

You have NOT YET successfully completed most of this year's assignments or are NOT on track to do so. (This is 80 credits, including a 40 or 20 credit project/dissertation).

You have met the Programme Learning Outcomes.

You have not met the Programme Learning Outcomes.

You will be required to complete one or more pieces of inclusive online assessment. This will contribute to meeting the overall Programme Learning Outcomes and/or the modules which are missing marks. This will be kept to an absolute minimum.

Your programme team will contact you to confirm you do not need to complete any further assessments as you have gained 80 credits successfully.

You will be required to complete one or more pieces of inclusive online assessment. This will contribute to meeting the overall Programme Learning Outcomes. This will be kept to an absolute minimum.

Your degree classification and overall weighted mean mark will use your best 80 credits (including project/dissertation).

Your degree classification and overall weighted mean mark will use your best 80 credits (including project/dissertation).